UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

STEPHEN MARTINEZ, ANA
MARTINEZ,

Plaintiffs,

v.

CAROLYN MARIE SOLTON,

Defendant.

Case No. SACV 17-00861-AG (KES)

ORDER REMANDING CASE
TO STATE COURT

I.

BACKGROUND

On April 5, 2017, Plaintiffs filed an unlawful detainer action against Defendant in the Orange County Superior Court, Case No. 30-2017-00912924-CL-UD-HNB. (Dkt. 1 at 6-8 [state court complaint].) On May 5, 2017, Defendant Carolyn Marie Solton filed a Notice of Removal of that action in this Court, accompanied by a request to proceed in forma pauperis (“IFP”). See Stephen Martinez, et al. v. Carolyn Marie Solton, 8:17-cv-00805-DOC-JDE. Defendant’s request for IFP was denied at the matter remanded to state court on May 9, 2017. (Id. at Dkts. 6, 7.)

On May 16, 2017, Plaintiff filed the Notice of Removal and IFP request now before this Court, seeking again to remove Case No. 30-2017-00912924-CL-UD-HNB. (Dkts. 1, 3.) The Court again sua sponte REMANDS this action to the

1 California Superior Court for the County of Orange for lack of subject matter
2 jurisdiction, as set forth below.

3 II.
4 DISCUSSION

5 “The right of removal is entirely a creature of statute and ‘a suit commenced
6 in a state court must remain there until cause is shown for its transfer under some act
7 of Congress.’” Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Henson, 537 U.S. 28, 32 (2002)
8 (quoting Great Northern R. Co. v. Alexander, 246 U.S. 276, 280 (1918)). Where 9 Congress has acted to create a right of removal, those statutes are strictly construed
10 against removal jurisdiction. Id.; Nevada v. Bank of Am. Corp., 672 F.3d 661, 667
11 (9th Cir. 2012); Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992).

12 Unless otherwise expressly provided by Congress, a defendant may remove 13 “any civil action brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United 14 States have original jurisdiction.” 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a); Dennis v. Hart, 724 F.3d
15 1249, 1252 (9th Cir. 2013). The removing defendant bears the burden of establishing 16 federal jurisdiction. Abrego v. Dow Chemical Co., 443 F.3d 676, 682 (9th Cir. 2006);
17 Gaus, 980 F.2d at 566-67. “Under the plain terms of § 1441(a), in order properly to 18 remove [an] action pursuant to that provision, [the removing defendant] must 19 demonstrate that original subject-matter jurisdiction lies in the federal courts.”
20 Syngenta Crop Protection, 537 U.S. at 33. Failure to do so requires that the case be 21 remanded, as “[s]ubject matter jurisdiction may not be waived, and . . . the district
22 court must remand if it lacks jurisdiction.” Kelton Arms Condo. Owners Ass’n v.
23 Homestead Ins. Co., 346 F.3d 1190, 1192 (9th Cir. 2003). “If at any time before final 24 judgment it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the case
25 shall be remanded.” 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c). It is “elementary that the subject matter
26 jurisdiction of the district court is not a waivable matter and may be raised at anytime 27 by one of the parties, by motion or in the responsive pleadings, or sua sponte by the 28 trial or reviewing court.” Emrich v. Touche Ross & Co., 846 F.2d 1190, 1194 n.2

1 (9th Cir. 1988).

2 A. Federal Question Jurisdiction.

3 The underlying action is an unlawful detainer proceeding, arising under and 4 governed by the laws of the State of California. The state-court Complaint does not 5 include any claim “arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United 6 States.” 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Federal defenses or federal counterclaims do not provide 7 a basis to remove an action which does not otherwise establish federal jurisdiction.
8 “[T]he existence of federal jurisdiction depends solely on the plaintiff’s claims for 9 relief and not on anticipated defenses to those claims.” ARCO Env’tl. Remediation,
10 L.L.C. v. Dept. of Health and Env’tl. Quality, 213 F.3d 1108, 1113 (9th Cir. 2000).
11 An “affirmative defense based on federal law” does not “render[] an action brought 12 in state court removable.” Berg v. Leason, 32 F.3d 422, 426 (9th Cir. 1994). A “case 13 may not be removed to federal court on the basis of a federal defense ... even if the 14 defense is anticipated in the plaintiff’s complaint, and even if both parties admit that 15 the defense is the only question truly at issue in the case.” Franchise Tax Bd. v.
16 Construction Laborers Vacation Trust, 463 U.S. 1, 14 (1983). There is no basis for 17 federal question jurisdiction.

18 B. Diversity Jurisdiction.

19 There is also no basis for diversity jurisdiction. Every defendant is not alleged 20 to be diverse from every plaintiff. 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a). Indeed, although Defendant 21 claims that diversity is a basis for federal jurisdiction, she alleges that both the 22 Plaintiffs and Defendant reside in Orange County. (Dkt. 1-1 at 2.)

23 Defendant also alleges that the amount in controversy “includes up to, but is 24 not limited to, an actuary exceeding $75,000[.]” (Dkt. 1 at 2-3.) Here, the complaint 25 does not allege damages in excess of $75,000; to the contrary, it is a limited civil 26 action in which the amount in controversy does not exceed $10,000. (Id. at 6.) The 27 amount in controversy in an unlawful detainer action is determined by the amount of 28 damages sought in the complaint. HSBC Bank USA v. Kubik, No. 13-3257, 2013

1 WL 12155693, at *1 (C.D. Cal. June 3, 2013) (citing Evans v. Superior Court, 67
2 Cal. App. 3d 162, 170 (1977)).

3 C. Jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1443

4 Section 1443(1) permits a defendant in state cases to remove the proceedings
5 to the federal district courts when a defendant is “denied or cannot enforce in the 6 courts of such State a right under any law providing for the equal civil rights of 7 citizens in the United States.” In order to successfully remove, the defendant must 8 satisfy a two-prong test: 1) the rights allegedly denied must arise under a federal law 9 providing for specific civil rights stated in terms of racial equality; and 2) the 10 defendant must be denied or unable to enforce the rights in state courts. Johnson v.
11 Mississippi, 421 U.S. 213, 219 (1975); City of Greenwood, Miss. v. Peacock, 384
12 U.S. 808, 827-28 (1966); Georgia v. Rachel, 384 U.S. 780, 792 (1966). Under the 13 first prong, constitutional or statutory provisions of general applicability or under 14 statutes not protecting against racial discrimination will not suffice. Johnson, 421 U.S.
15 at 219. Under the second prong, a defendant’s federal rights are left to the state courts 16 except in rare situations where it can be clearly predicted that those rights will 17 inevitably be denied by the very act of bringing the defendant to trial in state court.
18 Peacock, 384 U.S. at 828. A defendant “must assert that the state courts will not
19 enforce [a specified federal] right, and that allegation must be supported by reference
20 to a state statute or a constitutional provision that purports to command the state
21 courts to ignore the federal rights.” People of State of California v. Sandoval, 434
22 F.2d 635, 636 (9th Cir. 1970).

23 Defendant invokes Section 1443 by alleging that Plaintiffs have violated “the 24 [California] rules of evidence and civil procedure,” specifically California Code of 25 Civil Procedure § 128.7¹, by failing to authenticate evidence or provide proper

26
27 ¹ California Code of Civil Procedure § 128.7, in most respects identical to 28 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11, provides that when an attorney or unrepresented party presents pleadings to the court, he or she is certifying that the pleading is not

1 certification as to the complaint's legal and factual merits. (Dkt. 1 at 3.) Defendant
2 claims that "Plaintiff's counsel ... has used their knowledge of the law in attempting 3 to prevent Defendant from fully and accurately presenting her case" in violation of 4 "her due process right and equal protection under the 14th Amendment to protect her
5 tenancy." (Dkt. 1 at 4.)

6 Defendant's bare assertions do not satisfy either prong of the Section 1443 test.
7 First, Defendant does not allege the denial of any specific federal civil rights stated
8 in terms of alleged racial discrimination. Second, Defendant has failed to identify any 9 specific state statute or constitutional provision that commands the state courts to 10 ignore her federal rights. See HSBC Bank USA v. Kubik, No. 13-1692, 2013 WL
11 1694670, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 16, 2013) ("Defendant ... does not, and cannot,
12 identify any California state law or constitutional provision that commands state
13 courts to ignore an amendment to the U.S. Constitution."). Defendant's claim that 14 Plaintiffs are somehow violating state evidentiary and procedural rules is insufficient.
15 Moreover, the allegations she does make are entirely conclusory in nature. Section 16 1443(1) will not provide jurisdiction where allegations of discrimination are 17 conclusory and lacking factual basis. See Bogart v. California, 355 F.2d 377, 380-81
18 (9th Cir. 1966). Consequently, removal is not proper under § 1443(1).

19 D. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11.

20 Defendant, although proceeding pro se, is still subject to the requirements of 21 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11. Rule 11(b) states, "By presenting to the court a 22 pleading, written motion, or other paper ... [an] unrepresented party certifies that to 23 the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after inquiry
24 reasonable under the circumstances ... the factual contentions have evidentiary
25 support." Defendant's representation that the amount in controversy in the underlying

26 _____
27 being presented for an improper purpose, raises non-frivolous issues, and that the 28 factual contentions in the pleading have evidentiary support.

1 action exceeds $75,000 is contradicted by Plaintiffs' complaint, which clearly states
2 that they filed a limited civil action with damages not to exceed $10,000. (Dkt. 1 at 3 6.) This Court has the power to impose sanctions for violating Rule 11. Fed.R.Civ.P.
4 11(c)(3). In any future legal pleadings, Defendant should refrain from making
5 representations that lack evidentiary support.

6 Further, the Court notes that this is Defendant's second attempt to remove this
7 action to federal court. See Martinez v. Solton, 8:17-cv-00805-DOC-JDE. Rule 11
8 also bars a party from filing pleadings that are presented to cause unnecessary delay 9 in any court proceedings and from raising claims that the party has repeatedly been 10 informed are not warranted by existing law. Fed.R.Civ.P 11(b)(2). Defendant is 11 forewarned that future attempts to remove this action on the same grounds presented
12 here and in her previous removal action may result in sanctions for violating Rule 11.

13 III.

14 CONCLUSION

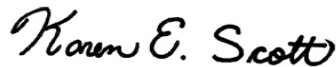

15 This Court does not have subject matter jurisdiction over this case. IT IS 16 THEREFORE ORDERED that this matter be REMANDED to the Superior Court of 17 the State of California for the County of Orange.
